The number 28 of the journal Cadernos do Desenvolvimento, special issue on COVID-19 and the relationship between health and development based on the concept of the Economic and Industrial Complex of Health (CEIS), proposes to examine the panorama of health in the Brazil and the development possibilities of this sector with a multidisciplinary and integrated vision. It also marks the events of Celso Furtado's 100th anniversary and the 120th anniversary of the Oswaldo Cruz Foundation (Fiocruz) in an effort to think about science and the country in the midst of the pandemic in which we are immersed. There are 12 articles and a special contribution, from 33 researchers, who under different perspectives find here a space for reflection and criticism beyond the current moment. But from it.

So we welcome this joint work by the International Celso Furtado Center for Development Policies and Fiocruz and we hope that this initiative will strengthen the studies and debates in this field of research.
